Australia	Law enforcement authorities are informed	X	always	In determining as to whether there is "credible evidence", Australia (EFIC) seeking external legal advice is in essence the likely first avenue in making such determination albeit we may consider other avenues such as consulting with relevant government agencies.

Belgium	Law enforcement authorities are informed	X	always	The information of the autorities is a competence of the management or the board as described in our disclosure procedure. For combating bribery, we have a standard procedure in place (i.e. basic checks). If these checks, in combination with other elements (discovered thanks to the experience of the underwriter) lead to the conclusion that bribery might be involved, enhanced due diligence is required, even if chance are extremely small. If the enhanced due diligence procedure leads to conclude that the risk of bribery is real, we do always inform the law enforcement authorities. By stating that we do "not always inform the law enforcement authorities", we mean we do not inform them if the enhanced due diligence procedure leads to conclude that bribery is very unlikely.

As a matter of fact the misunderstanding was due to the difficulty of interpretation of credible evidence in French Law and our first answer was "not always" because Coface has to assess any bribery suspicion before considering it as credible evidence to be transmitted.
