Corrigendum

Page 5 (acknowledgements):

Current text:

This programming note was prepared for the International Network on Conflict and Fragility (INC AF) of the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). The programming note was researched and drafted by Peggy Ochandarena and Lyndsay McLean Hilker through the Security System Reform Project, funded by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID). A range of experts contributed to drafting the note, including members of the INC AF Armed Violence Reduction (AVR) advisory panel who provided insightful feedback during the course of this paper's conceptual development and editorial review. Special recognition is owed to the following individuals for their input: Julie Werbel and Joan Hoffman, and to Charlene Seligman and Sanida Kikic for research efforts. Final thanks go to the secretariat of the OECD DAC's International Network on Conflict and Fragility (INC AF) for guidance and practical assistance, in particular Rory Keane, Erwin van Veen, Sarah Cramer and Joshua Rogers.

Text after corrigendum:

This programming note was prepared for the International Network on Conflict and Fragility (INCAF) of the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). The programming note was researched and drafted by Peggy Ochandarena and Lyndsay McLean Hilker through the Security System Reform Project. It was funded by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ). A range of experts contributed to drafting the note, including members of the INCAF Armed Violence Reduction (AVR) advisory panel who provided insightful feedback during the course of this paper's conceptual development and editorial review. Special recognition is owed to the following individuals for their input: Julie Werbel and Joan Hoffman, and to Charlene Seligman and Sanida Kikic for research efforts. Final thanks go to the secretariat of the OECD DAC's International Network on Conflict and Fragility (INCAF) for guidance and practical assistance, in particular Rory Keane, Erwin van Veen, Sarah Cramer and Joshua Rogers.