Sunil JOHAL is Policy Director at the Mowat Centre, an independent public policy think tank at the University of Toronto, Canada. He leads the Centre's research activities, manages the research team and teaches a variety of executive education courses. He is frequently invited to advise governments and international organisations about disruptive technologies and regulatory and policy issues.